

It is my belief that the FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protection.

I used to receive unsolicited calls all of the time from telemarketers. I told them repeatedly not to call me back, but I always received more calls.

Since this law has been enacted, the calls have all but stopped.

To modify this law in any way would serve to diminish its effectiveness. Please do not modify the current law in any way to allow those who would interrupt my precious time with my wife and family to do so.

Erik Blumenberg

--Any of your personal views about the importance of Indiana's law.